

Network based Input System and Method

Abstract

The present invention provides an input method, system and apparatus based on a network and an input system thereof, in which an user selects a desired language and desired input method(s) by downloading an applet from a server according to the invention, and sends the input characters to the invention to be recognized, and then the server sends the recognized results back to the user.